THEY SAY

Dogs will bark when they hear a noise.

The dog on 15th St., n. w., barked Monday, but, as usual it was a harmless bark.

The N. York liar will have just as much as he can attend to.

The name of Gen'l. Browne is being used without his knowledge.

When the Bee gets through with shop thieves and sharks, the dogs will cease to bark.

Does Gen'l. Browne know that his name is being maliciously used by one of his employees?

This is a game that three can play at.

It will be seen who the thief is.

Look out boys you will hear a bomb burst.

The N. York liar and Newport beat will find out that can't come to Washington and play his sharp tricks.

The big man who is afraid of his head will have all that he needs.

The Bee is everywhere fortified and documents will tell.

The great institution is disbanded and the members are requested to recognize no beat that may attempt to bulldoze them.

Why doesn't that sharper sign his letters?

Let her go "Gallager" the Bee knows just what it is doing.

If the Gen'l. thinks that he can bulldoze the Bee why doesn't he call?

The institution has been robbed of three thousand dollars by stolen notes.

Wait and see the circus.

He wants to show his honesty; does he?

When the Bee gets through with him the dogs will not bark at him.

He has become extremely honest in the eyes of that old fossil.

Evidence is the best evidence.

The greatest Judas is in the city. Lookout for him.

Some men think that they can hide their rascality.

The institution is disbanded and those who have property money is in luck.

The old man who is afraid of his head ought to take a rest.

The thief who went to the bank to collect a note should put his hand over his mouth.

His letter to the editor indicts him as a consummate thief.

Let him open his mouth. Read the police record.

He wants to run with the "hare and hunt with the hounds."

Put him on the stand as a witness Charlie.

Still he is honest.

He has cut off more than he can chew.

Honest men can account for their acts.

The treasury can account for them.

"Lay on McBeth and — he who cries hold enough."

The Gen'l. will have no shoulder strap when the Bee is through with him.

NEW HAVEN NEWS.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 18, '91.

One of the most pleasant events of the season thus far, was the vocal and instrumental concert in behalf of Bethel A. M. E. church, Sperry st., managed by little Miss Jessie L. Newton of our city. The music was very instructive and there was a large and appreciative audience present. Great credit is due the juvenile managers for their skillful manipulation of an extended list of joyful artists. The church netted $67.32 cts., by the affair. Assisting Miss Newton was the Mozart quartette, Messrs.

John Godett, Jr., H. L. Crawford, J. R. R. W. Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Williams; pianists, Messrs. Geo. Benjamin, F. Wormley and DeBaptist H. Hurd, and Riley instrumentalist. Miss Nellie Cant, soprano soloist and others.

Rev. John T. Hammond, left for Philadelphia Saturday morning to be absent one week.

Mrs. Georgiana Hurd has gone to New York on a visit to her aunt.

WHAT I SAW, AND HEARD.

It is an old saying and a true one that a drowning man will grab at a straw.

I am more than convinced that the colored people of this country need not only political protection, but, protection from their supposed colored friends who stand as leaders of the colored people. The latest scheme now is the African transposition or colonization society.

Some Negro preachers who are too holy to allow public meetings to be held in their churches, but, will enter schemes to delude their people, should be branded as Judas Iscariot was when he betrayed Christ.

At last Bro. John C. Daney of "Star of Zion" has been convinced that Recorder B. K. Bruce is all right. Strange things happen sometimes Bro. Daney. The Bee said some time ago that those Negroes who took sides with liars and thieves did not know what they were doing. You are admitted to the fraternity Bro. Daney and I hope before you start off again on a wild goose chase you will know what you are doing.

When a man lies about you, never fail to make him prove it. When a bluster goes about town preaching up his virtues and endeavoring to destroy the reputation of honest people give him to understand that you intend to make him prove it. It was my intention to read the riot act to the Col., this week but as he has taken back all that he said and promised never to do so again, I have concluded to let him rest. It is my intention to defend myself against any attack that may be made by those who are too cowardly to pursue the right course. Some men are of the opinion that they are right and know it all, but it happens this time, as it always does, that I know a thing or two also.

Those who wish to see a large meeting next Monday night should not hesitate to be present as good speeches will be delivered by great men.

Rev. Robt. Johnson is out again, looking well and hearty. The church is preparing for a grand rally which will take place shortly and it is hoped that every citizen and friend of the Metropolitan Baptist church will come forward and do all they can to lift the debt off the church.

The supervising principalship is a thing that is worrying the school teachers. They don't know what to do nor do they know who will be appointed.

THE STORY OF A SOCIAL BELLE.

"Sometimes I doubt if I were born," writes a society belle in a delightful article "The Story of a Society Girl," in the November Ladies' Home Journal. "I think I am the result of transmigration—first an orchard, next a bird of Paradise, and, last of all, a blooded horse. I belong to an old family, and my solicitor tells me that I have a great deal of money; but, who ever heard of a woman having enough? Mamma, very sensibly, trained me to be a coquette. From the time that I could stand I was fully aware of the value of my white skin, my deep, dark eyes, and that attached to the wonderful red hair that made gorgeous framing for my finely cut face. I was willing to go to bed early, for I had been told of the good of those sleeping hours that come before twelve o'clock; to be bathed and rubbed until I was weary enough to sleep again, because my nurse had said that this would make my form handsome and supple, and my arms and neck the admiration of the world. School was an unknown quantity to me—governesses and that sort of thing came and I endured them, learned of them, and was spoken of by them as the most beautiful girl they had ever seen—but one who was utterly heartless. They little understood that heart was the last thing that would be desirable in my profession, for I made it such.

"At eighteen years of age I was brought out, but for three months before that my mother had taught me exactly who among the men were eligible, who were not, what ones to be civil to and what ones to ignore. I made my first appearance at the Patriarchs' Ball, and mamma very wisely had me dressed in the finest of white silk muslin, made in Empire style, with a broad, white sash about my waist, a white rose in my hair, and long, white gloves, only partially covering my beautiful arms. As was proper, I accepted the invitations to dance from the elderly men, from whom it was a compliment to receive them, and, as far as possible, I ignored the younger ones. I sought mamma's wing at the end of each dance, and, to her delight, the impression left on everybody's mind was that of my being an extremely beautiful, ingenious, young girl who knew nothing whatever about society. How they erred!"
